MMRDA and Project Mumbai Sign Five-Year Partnership for Mumbai Climate Week

MMRDA is now supporting and hosting the initiative, helping connect regional infrastructure planning with climate action led by citizens

Mumbai, October 5, 2026: The Mumbai Metropolitan Region Development Authority (MMRDA) and Project Mumbai have agreed to work together for five years on Mumbai Climate Week (MCW). MMRDA will serve as the Initiative Support and Host Partner. This partnership combines MMRDA's experience in regional planning, transport, housing, and infrastructure with Project Mumbai's background in citizen-driven sustainability efforts.

Through this partnership, the two organizations will focus on three main areas: adapting agriculture, nutrition, and water; moving towards cleaner energy, such as future fuels and green electricity; and building urban and regional resilience, especially for coastal issues, extreme heat, and cooling needs.

The two groups plan to work together on studies, pilot projects, and demonstrations throughout the Mumbai Metropolitan Region. Their goal is to find solutions that could be used in other cities as well. They will also look at creating exhibitions and knowledge platforms to share the region's infrastructure projects, climate solutions, and experiences with audiences in India and abroad.

"Mumbai's climate challenges require solutions that connect urban development with climate action and bring together government, institutions, businesses and citizens," said Shishir Joshi, Founder and CEO, Project Mumbai. "Through this partnership with MMRDA, we aim to build on the momentum of Mumbai Climate Week and create pathways for translating climate conversations into practical action. From strengthening urban resilience and advancing the energy transition to exploring scalable solutions for the Mumbai Metropolitan Region, the focus will be on collaboration, implementation and impact."

This five-year partnership is designed to be an ongoing program, not just tied to a single event, and will cover several editions of Mumbai Climate Week. The next edition, MCW 2027, is scheduled for 23 to 26 February 2027 at the Jio World Convention Centre in Mumbai.
